After YEARS of fruitless communication with council to have the infamous termite infested woolybutt tree removed from our Albert Terrace boundary a simple phone call from the museum to the Bega Valley Shire Council deduced that in fact the tree had been condemned and was for removal!!

SO... on 30th September the tree was removed revealing a live and sizeable termite nest that was destroyed. AT LAST

.....but alas not before the termite damage to the museum building had cost in the order of $16,000 to rectify.

GOING GOING GONE

DARE TO DREAM

A very fitting celebration of our year long Arts & Crafts Competition was held on the evening of 14th October to award all winners their prizes and to thank the judges. Choral interludes by the Eden Singers conducted by Susan Cleverley, included an inspiring rendition of our theme tune for the year "Dare to Dream". Tasty samples of local specialist foods and wines very ably complemented the evening's proceedings. A presentation was made to Genevieve and Greg Farmer pictured whose address is the only number 80 as a residence that we could find in town.

Standards Programme 2011 nears completion

Eden Killer Whale Museum volunteers and staff have been working throughout the year with M&GNSW staff and the Standards Review Committee to keep abreast of ways to maintain and improve our standard of operation. Positive progress is being achieved in this process. Revised position descriptions and volunteer rights and responsibilities documents have been formulated to assist current and prospective volunteers in their understanding of work done in all aspects of the museum's operation.

Kent Mayo and Susan Hutchinson have made two field visits (August and October) to EKWM.

A workshop in Narooma was attended by Stevi and Jenny. An event in December at Cooma will see the conclusion of the programme that included eleven museums from the South East Region.

Once again this museum is out of the ordinary. Many of these programmes have tasks and models that have already been addressed and/or achieved by EKWM. However, there is always room for improvement and we will strive to make our museum a place where volunteers will feel welcome, enjoy working and get a great deal of satisfaction doing soas we have!

2011 Eden Whale Festival keeps the museum volunteers busy!

Between the opening ceremony and afternoon tea, the parade and the appraisal day EKWM members were involved on each day of the festival. The new vests looked very smart in the parade, as they do at all our functions these days. Almost 100 items were bought for appraisal on Sunday with

More 80th Birthdays

OBE's (Old but Everlasting or One Beaut Edenite!!) have been awarded to more octogenarians since our last Soundings issue. Pictured is Ursula Werner receiving her medal and badge from Museum member Anne Buljan.

Others who have celebrated their 80th birthdays this quarter are Beryl Hall, Hazel Bennett, John Morell who previously acted as Town Crier for us and John Mashado. These awards continue to be well received and there are a few more to be presented before the year is out. This will bring the count to 18 the 80th birthdays Eden Killer Whale Museum has shared with residents in our community. A big thank you to Jan Freeman for baking and icing a cake for each birthday, and to staff and members who have prepared and presented the awards for the Museum.
